

MUSIC AND A MESSAGE

Raising their voices for equality

The civil rights movement spearheaded by Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. opened America's eyes to the surmountable struggle of basic human rights under our Constitution. Urging fellow countrymen to unite through the power of peace and words, King said, "We will remember not the words of our enemies, but the silence of our friends." By compelling people to speak up against hatred and acknowledge what is wrong in this world, he helped to change the face of our society. ¶ Presently we find ourselves at the helm of another human rights fight—and for this, music artists, organizations and media are raising their voices for an issue that begs to break the silence. In its inaugural event, the 15-city True Colors Tour kicks off in Las Vegas on June 8 to promote and raise public awareness regarding the issues faced by the gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender community. The tour was conceived by music icon Cyndi Lauper who will be joined onstage by Debbie Harry, Erasure, The Dresden Dolls and Indigo Girls for an unbelievable night of music hosted by comedian Margaret Cho (pictured). ¶ In support of the Human Rights Campaign, the tour is presented by alternative lifestyle channel Logo, PFLAG, the Matthew Shepard Foundation and True Colors Concerts LLC. Advocating equal rights under the law for the lives of GLBT Americans, the Human Rights Campaign continues its fight to make equality a reality. So remember, friends: Show your support—as $1 from every ticket sale will be donated to the campaign—and shed the silence by raising your voice. —KIKO MIYASATO
